Johann Strese
Project Assistant

Johann Strese works as a Project Assistant at adelphi. His areas of concentration are in climate change and security in the Eastern Europe, Central Asia and Latin America. He is experienced in the design and implementation of conferences and trainings.

Before joining adelphi, Johann Strese gained practical experience in a sustainable agricultural development project in Peru and at the Klima-Allianz, a German civil alliance for climate protection. He also worked as a freelance interpreter and translator and conducted trainings for a German youth environmental network. He successfully completed a one-year course called “ZukunftsPiloten” (Future Pilots), a qualification programme funded by the Deutscher Naturschutzring (German League for Nature, Animal Protection and Environment – DNR) and targeted at young professionals in the environmental field.

Johann Strese studied Romance Languages, Russian Studies and Human Geography at the University of Potsdam and at the Universitat Pompeu Fabra (UPF) in Barcelona, Spain. In addition to his specialisation in Latin America and Russia, he concentrates on environmental and resource-related conflicts in Ibero-America and international migration issues in the Americas and Europe.
